Instructions: To be qualified as a graduate student of English, you should be able to write at least fairly well; thus, this part of the entrance examination will determine greatly whether you can be admitted to our graduate program. Your writing will be graded according to four criteria: grammar, language, organization, and content. Choose one of the following two topics, think carefully, and write as well as you can.

1. On Love

2. The Functions of Literature in Modern Society
